at the goats.' "Come ahead." cried another, "that will be lots of fun. I'll bet I can hit one, first shot." "Let's see who can hit 'em the most times," cried another.
"Oh, horrors! did you hear what they said, Billy? This is where we have our eyes put "Don't worry, my dear Mrs. straight enough to hit us. They are too small. Besides, what do you suppose your friend Billy Whiskers will be doing while they are throwing frecrackers at you?

"In my fright I had forgotten you were here to help me. I should have known you would find some means to drive them "I am not afraid of the little crackers and as long as they confine themselves to those I will let them throw all they want to," said Billy. "But the minute they start throwing giant ones, I will stop them."

"But how can you?"
"Wait and see."

Juniors Doing Good Work in The Balkans

"Achievement is the only patent of nobility in the modern world."—Ex-President Woodrow Wilson.

Although less than one year old, the Junior Red Cross, of Czechoslovakia, which was or-ganized by the aid of the Junior American Red Cross is already doing splendid work. In spite of the fact that there are so many needs for their services at home, the Czech Juniors have been quick to spring to the relief of the suffering children of Russia. In this they have set the suffering children of Russia. In this they have set an example to all the world.

The Juniors are being supplied with materials which they are making up into garments for the half-clothed Russian children. Besides this sewing and knitting junior classes will undertake to find homes for Russian refugee and orphan children and will assist them financially. Each class is to be a sort of fostermother to the child it adopts.

The Czechoslovakian minis-The Czechoslovakian minis-try of education has requested that the schools arrange for special hours each week to be set aside for this work for the Russian children, the hour to be called "Russian hour." The ju-nior boys will give marionette shows, plays and games, the proceeds of which will be do-nated to the common relief fund. One day has been set aside in each week, during which the juniors will abstain from the use of butter and fats, and will ask their parents to contribute the saved portion to the gov-ernment's collectors when they call for donations for the starying people of Russia.

The Junior Red Cross movement so pronounced in Czechoslovakia, is rapidly spreading throughout the world. Canada. Australia, China. Switzerland. Poland and Hungary already have their organizations, and plans are being perfected for the enrollment of the school children of Great Britain, Italy, France, Belgium, Bulgaria and Portugal.

The Whole Truth. The Holyrood Gazette is deter-
